

Why choose us?

Some people say that consultants borrow your watch and then tell you the time. We say, let us show you what our watch says and then check whether your watch is right. Here are some good reasons for choosing us.

- We have been established in one form or another since 2000 and have built a reputation for quality and service.
- We have long-standing relationships with many of our clients
- Our terms are open and transparent so you will always know what the work will cost
- We enjoy getting to know your business and being part of your journey to excellence
- Our consultants are fully qualified – NEBOSH Diploma or equivalent
- We can call on specialists to help with complex areas of risk
- We are a socially responsible organisation, offering help and support to charities and voluntary organisations free of charge
- We like people! Our consultants are friendly and easy to work with

How we can help your business

Advice and guidance

The Management of Health and Safety at Work Regulations require every employer to have a 'competent person' to advise them on how to comply with health and safety law. For many businesses it is simply not practical to employ someone full-time to take on that role. The Bradley Group can become the 'competent person' and can give advice on what your organisation needs to do to be fully compliant with the law while remaining within the bounds of what is "reasonably practicable". We offer various levels of a 'competent person' service, depending on the size and complexity of the organisation. Call us for a quote.

Auditing

Progress is only possible if an organisation knows where it is now and where it wants to be. A baseline audit examines the way health and safety is managed in an organisation and sets it against a standard, such as HSG65 or ISO 45001, to identify where the organisation is doing well and where there is scope for improvement.

Our auditors are eagle-eyed but friendly and they won't just look at paperwork. They will watch how work is done and how the workplace is organised; they will listen to staff and find out how they see health and safety and take time to understand the work of the organisation. The results will be presented as a report with a prioritised action plan that can be used by the leaders of the organisation to plan how to move forward.

Fire risk assessment

This is an important legal requirement that cannot always be dealt with in-house. Our own consultants can assess the risks of fire in most organisations but we also have specialist associates who can deal with more complex situations.

Risk assessment support

Writing a risk assessment is more than just filling in a form. It needs to be a thinking and planning process that helps organisations to see where their major risks are and what they need to do to control them. We can help with devising a risk assessment system, the process of assessing the risks of the major work activities and finding sensible risk controls that will achieve real risk reduction without going beyond what it is reasonably practicable to do.

Policy and planning

Directors, Trustees and Senior Managers are required to set a clear policy on health and safety management in their organisation and put a plan in place that will implement the policy on the ground. We can brief senior people on this important area of risk management and how it fits with the Combined Code. We can also help to devise a policy that will meet legal requirements while remaining accessible to all who work for and with the organisation. We can also give advice and guidance on how to put together a one-year plan for implementing the policy, including techniques for measuring the success of the policy.

Let's start the conversation –
call us now on 01795 599989

or email sally.heard@thebradleygroup.co.uk